

MOUZ

Dear mouz,

Nocturnal:

"Hey bymas, you're such a fun player to watch and im glad mouz gave you a chance to properly show how skilled you are at the game. You play with such confidence and focus, its a blessing to watch. Win that major, win that MVP while your at it as well. You local NA Fan, Noccutnal."

Lev3e1:

"I wanna say:

acoR: you are my favourite awper and it's not even close. You literally play like a more aggressive KennyS, jumping into angles and holding the weirdest angles in postplants (Such as holding bank from the money truck with doublezoom, like who does that, fucking genius), watching you play has always been a joy. You still got it in you, mate, we believe in you!

Bymas: How do you play the same positions every round and still get 2 or 3 every single time. I literally cannot understand that. One of the best site anchors I have ever seen.

ropz: What can't you do? Like, what role or position can you not play? Your gamesense is unparalleled, and leetify told me that you statistically have the best aim in the game, so you just go and do your thing and click on those heads real good :) Also you are the only person in the tournament from Jõgeva so you are instantly better :)

Dexter: Watching you play is simply a joy. You seem to do everything for your team, creating space just like Karrigan did, playing the hardest positions and always hitting the hardest shots. Abandoning your kid was the best choice you ever made.

frozen: The mass of your balls currently produces enough gravitational pull that it holds the team together incredibly well. The positions you play define how the position are meant to be played, and you consistently defy the rules of CS, never giving respect to players who depend on that respect to play to their best.

You guys are my favourite team. I jump around at my room about your victories and I quietly watch the stream and inhale copium every time you lose, but you guys have taught me everything I know about this game. Every strat you pull off and every victory you gain shows how much effort and passion you put into the game, and I will always love watching you play, no matter what. I truly want to thank you guys for getting me into CS esports as well. I started watching because of ropz, but I kept watching because of you. TY, and LFG! WOOOOOO"

